Hello from Chicago! My real name is Mike Mahood and I'm an old mainframer who has become an XML addict and fan of Cocoon. I'm also a firm believer in Open Source software. Some of that software is very excellent quality and also very creative. I own just about all of the books published about Cocoon and I'm now looking forward to the 2nd additions to start coming out.

In my current position, I support various transformation middleware applications using a 3rd party vendor tool called Mercator (now owned by someone else).

I have not had the pleasure of working on a Cocoon based development project, but I hope too someday. Meanwhile, I will continue exploring the wonderful world of Cocoon as a hobby.
