About

Apache Tapestry is an open-source framework for creating dynamic, robust, highly scalable web applications in Java or other JVM languages. Tapestry complements and builds upon the standard Java Servlet API, and so it works in any servlet container or application server.

Tapestry is released under the Apache Software License 2.0.

Tapestry has a long history, with the oldest code dating back to January 2000. That means a lot of releases. At this time, Tapestry releases 3 and 4 are no longer being developed; developer effort for the past several years has focused on Tapestry 5.

Training and Support

Apache Tapestry is an open source project and as such, supported by the community. Even if you are looking for commercial support, your best bet for support is to first subscribe to Apache Tapestry user mailing list and ask there. Read more about how to get involved.

Commercial Training and Support

Training on Tapestry and Support is available directly from the source: the Tapestry project committers:

- Thiago H. de Paula Figueiredo: Provides training and support on Tapestry and related technologies including Hibernate

Community Support

Like all Apache projects, Tapestry uses mailing lists for most communication. You can subscribe by sending e-mail to the addresses below. For each list, there are subscribe, unsubscribe, and archive links. All Tapestry users are welcome to subscribe to any of these lists, however questions on how to use Tapestry in your application are best sent to the user mailing list.
