

JeffRamsdale

Hi all. I'm a Seattle-based developer who discovered Cocoon while trying to learn about web application development. Turns out that not only have I learned a lot of that from this community but I've also learned about the social dynamics of e-mail-oriented software development, open-source philosophy, and much about writing maintainable and extendable large-scale software.

Glad to be here. My web page: io informatics