RichardHoberman

Hi

I'm a London-based software developer. After a number of years in the industry I am planning to become a barrister, starting in September. I hope to survive three years of unemployment by providing top notch web development services. After circling the Web Publishing block for a while I've decided to throw in my lot with the rest of you.

I am currently working with a client to develop a fully-featured e-commerce site and using cocoon to do so. I'll post the URL when it goes live.