I'm the one who started this cocoon thing.

I used to be an active developer (writing tons of code) but since I managed to attract tons of brilliant people enjoy coding much more than I do, I'm so nice to let them do the work 😊

Just kidding. No, the truth is that I don't need to write code anymore since others are faster/better than I am at coding... so right now I concentrate on what I really like: software architecture design!

That's why they call me the "Herald of Random Thought" 😊

In short, my job for cocoon is have fun, enjoy the ride and make sure that fun is shared as much as possible and can scale even more.

Producing software is secondary to me. This is probably the reason why so many people like Cocoon and its community.

Ah, you can visit my homepage as well.
