

TonyEdwards

A VB programmer by trade, I got turned on to Cocoon when I began fiddling with XML about 2 years ago. Since then I've developed a couple of simple document management apps but am now getting stuck into the manifold machinations of Flow and Woody.

In my opinion its the closest thing to VB for the web that I've ever seen! I'm toying with the idea of forming an Australian Cocoon User Group as I've noticed a fair increase in the number of Aussie submissions on the user lists. If you read this and you're an Australian and you think its a good idea make a submission on the user list and I'll get in touch.

anthonybedwards@optusnet.com.au

Flow Based XML Editor This is my first submission to the Wiki after some discussion on the user list. Its basically a simple how to on creating and editing xml documents using Flowsript.