One of the current generation of the Kaffe developers. Loud, clear, Free Software person. Enjoys implementing runtimes for fun from spare parts, and integrating those parts into a coherent whole. Has a healthy anti-NIH attitude. which he developed during co-maintaining Kaffe for the last few years. Has merged almost anything worth merging on the class library side into Kaffe, and is now moving to merge VM components and good work done in the various forks of Kaffe on isolation, single system image, jits, embedded and realtime solutions into the main Kaffe.org tree, harmonizing the Kaffe world. Blogs about the state of affairs occasionally on Planet Classpath, but prefers to get things done, rather than talk lofty about them. Regards non-free software licenses as source of involuntary tragicomical entertainment.
